Khiem Nguyen • 03/17/25 2:41 PM

🕒 3 min. reading time

Bitcoin as a legacy: how do you arrange your crypto inheritance?

Photo: Epatante/Shutterstock

The rise of bitcoin (BTC) has not only changed the way people invest and save, but also how wealth is passed on to future generations. There are clear rules and structures for traditional financial assets, but for crypto this is a lot more complicated.

How do you ensure that your bitcoins are not lost and the next generation can use them? During the Cryptotable, Didi Taihuttu shared his vision of the challenges of crypto-inheritances.

🔊 Listen to the Crypto Table here! >

The big challenge: how do you inherit bitcoin?

In the traditional financial system, an inheritance is recorded through a notary, but crypto is different. However, this dilemma does not stop Taihuttu from looking for alternative solutions.

// "If you don't want to pay tax, you can't have your crypto capital captured as an inheritance in an official way."

One of those solutions is Inheriti, a Belgian platform that uses blockchain technology to store passwords and keys encrypted and only release them in the event of death.

In addition, there are wallets that automatically forward access codes if someone is inactive for ten days. Yet Taihuttu sees disadvantages here: "That is not decentralized, not anonymous and not really on the blockchain."

Bitcoin as a family remedy: preparing the next generation

For Taihuttu, it is not only about his own wealth, but also about the future of his children. He is convinced that the next generation will grow up in a world where banks are a thing of the past.

// "If we let kids open a bitcoin wallet before they get a bank account, they will never go back to the old system."

Still, there is another obstacle: financial services for young people hardly exist in crypto. Bitcoin payment cards are often only available to people over 18, making young users dependent on adults.

Taihuttu solves this by requesting multiple cards himself and sharing them with his children. "That's not entirely legal, of course, but it shows where the industry is failing."

Time to take action

Although Taihuttu has been working on his crypto legacy for years, he still doesn't have a definitive plan. He admits that the money does not interest him so much, but that he still needs to be arranged.

For bitcoiners who want to protect their assets, it can be useful to come up with a strategy now. Because without a good plan, your bitcoins could be lost for good.

Do you want to know how Taihuttu manages his crypto inheritance? Listen to the latest episode of the Crypto Table now!

🔊 Listen to the Crypto Table here! >

Share this article 🗨️

Crypto trading 📈 ▼

Copy link

Khiem Nguyen >

Khiem started at Crypto Insiders as an intern and in that capacity soon started writing fundamental analyses for the Premium community. Since...

Other bitcoin news

More bitcoin news >

Bitcoin ETFs lose money again, price on its way to worst Q1 in j...

12:21 • 🕒 3 min. reading time

Bitcoin is lagging behind in Europe, and this is why

09:49 • 🕒 2 min. reading time

ADVERTISEMENT

Cadeautje: €10,- gratis crypto

GRATIS AANMELDEN

Altseason postponed? Investors flee en masse to Bitcoin

03/29/2025 • 🕒 3 min. reading time

Bitcoin is about to break through: Analyst gives 75% chance of new record...

03/29/2025 • 🕒 3 min. reading time

⚡ Just inside

🔥 Most read

13:11

XRP today most popular crypto among Dutch after victory over SEC

12:21

Bitcoin ETFs lose money again, course on way to worst Q1 in years

11:06

Cryptobeurs Kraken gives Dutch the choice: convenience or everything – this is how it works

09:49

Bitcoin is lagging behind in Europe, and this is why

07:55

Crypto investor talks about biggest profit ever: €370 becomes €74,000

21:53

Altseason postponed? Investors flee en masse to Bitcoin

Show more >

ADVERTISEMENT

📈 Most read Bitcoin news

Next Friday crucial for investors in 2025

03/24/25 • 🕒 2 min. reading time

MetaPlanet buys 150 Bitcoin and appoints Eric Trump: price reacts

03/24/25 • 🕒 2 min. reading time

All eyes on Friday: bitcoin price may rise due to report

03/26/2025 • 🕒 3 min. reading time

📧

The best of Crypto Insiders directly in your mailbox

Register

ADVERTISEMENT

Nieuws in je broekzak

3x per dag gratis een update

📱 NAAR WHATSAPP

A gift from our partners: start with a head start 🎁

Take your first steps in crypto with more knowledge and a bonus. Receive exclusive bonuses and discounts from our partners.

Crypto trading 📈 ▼